

CONTRIBUTORS

Jack Breckenridge

is a Professor of Art at Arizona State University. He studied with Hans Hofmann in New York in 1952, the Saugatuck Summer School and has degrees from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and the University of Iowa (MFA), where he was a Woodrow Wilson Fellow. His current interests are American and European painting after World War II.

Claudia Brown

was a visiting Lecturer in East Asian art at Arizona State University for the spring semester of 1979. She is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Kansas working in the field of Chinese painting of the Yüan dynasty.

Ju-Hsi Chou

is a Professor of Art at Arizona State University. He received his Ph.D. from Princeton University. A specialist in later Chinese, he has published articles dealing with Ming and Ch'ing artists and art theory. He is presently in Japan (1979) studying Chinese art in Japanese collections.

Sherly Farness

is an Assistant Professor of Art at Arizona State University. She received her MA degree from Michigan State University and specializes in ancient and classical art.

Anthony Lacy Gully

is an Associate Professor of Art at Arizona State University. He received his Ph.D. from Stanford University. His writings have been primarily devoted to British art of the eighteenth- and nineteenth-centuries. He is currently (Spring, 1979) on sabbatical leave in Great Britain.

Mildred Monteverde

is an Associate Professor of Art History at the University of Southern Colorado. She received a Ph.D. from the University of California at Los Angeles in Precolumbian-Early Colonial art history and a post-doctoral American Council of Learned Societies Fellowship to study the archaeology of Southwestern United States and Mexico. Her study of the Indigenous Art and Architecture of the Southwest is forthcoming.

Donald Rabiner

is an Assistant Professor of Art at Arizona State University. He received his Ph.D. at the University of Kansas. His publications have been devoted to the study of painting in Southern Italy in the seventeenth- and eighteenth-centuries.

Rosalind Robinson

is a graduate student in art history at Arizona State University specializing in nineteenth century France. She holds a B.A. degree in French from Wheaton College (Mass.).

Vicki C. Wright

is a graduate student in art history at Arizona State University. She was the recipient of an Arizona State University Graduate Fellowship for the 1977-78 academic year and currently serves as a Teaching Assistant in art history.

Winberta Yao

is an Associate Librarian in the Reference Service of the Arizona State University Library and is the Subject Specialist in Art. She was formerly Librarian at the Phoenix Art Museum. Her degrees are from the University of California, Berkeley and Columbia University.